Section-A [Reading Comprehension (Seen)]

1. Read the following paragraphs and answer the questions that follow :

Netaji Subhas Chandra was not a man to appeal to the grace of the British rulers for freedom of the country. He hated any idea of compromising with anything unjust and wrong. So he started the vigorous campaign against the British Government in public. The foreign rulers sent him behind the bars but could not curb his indomitable spirit.

In the third week of January, 1941, befooling the British Police Force, he escaped from internment in his own house and went to Germany in disguise. From there he went to Japan travelling under waters in a submarine. From Japan he went to Singapore and built up the Azad Hind Fauj and proclaimed the formation of the Azad Hind Government. He was called 'Netaji' by the soldiers of the Azad Hind Fauj, the first Indian National Army (INA). As the leader of the Azad Hind Fauj, Netaji said to the soldiers of the Fauj : "Comrades ! Soldiers ! Let your battle cry be—To Delhi, To Delhi!"

The national salutation 'Jai Hind' was first conceived by Azad Hind Fauj. Netaji's breath is still felt in this national salutation of today's free India : 'Jai Hind!'

Whose woods these are I think I know

His house is in the village though;

He will not see me stopping here

To watch his woods fill up with snow.

My little horse must think it queer

To stop without a farmhouse near

Between the woods and frozen lake

The darkest evening of the year.

He gives his harness bells a shake

To ask if there is some mistake.

The only other sound's the sweep

Of easy wind and downy flake.

The woods are lovely, dark and deep,

But I have promises to keep,

And miles to go before I sleep,

And miles to go before I sleep.

READING COMPREHENSION (UNSEEN)

3. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow :

Some 30 years ago, a wide-eyed, impressionable girl stood beneath a towering rocket inside one of India's earliest rocket launching stations in Kerala. The rocket was readying to be fired in a few days. The student, on a school trip to the Thumba Equatorial Rocket Launching Station in Thiruvananthapuram, Kerala, quietly relished the experience of being near a real rocket — "fascinated" by something she knew "little about".

Today Tersy Thomas—dubbed "agniputri" or the daughter of fire by the media—is the project director of Agni V at the Defence Research Development Organisation (DRDO) station in Hyderabad. She was a member of the team that developed the long range inter-continental ballistic missile (IGBM)—Agni V. The missile was successfully test-fired from Wheeler Island in Odisha.

Young Tersy's life took a significant turn when after a B.Tech in Electrical Engineering in Kerala, she applied for a postgraduate course in Guided Missile Technology. When Agni V took off, Thomas says it was "an indescribable and a great" moment.

After the launch, she visited her former boss and mentor, A.P.J. Abdul Kalam. "He is the role model for all our Indian scientists. He praised us for doing a good job and gifted me his latest book of poems," Thomas says with enthusiasm. She was a junior in the DRDO when Kalam took over as its director. Kalam often cites her case when he encourages young woman students in colleges to take up science.
